10 Housing Policies to Watch Under President Trump

We as a family want to know: Will the new president completely cut out all HUD and section 8 services.

FUNDING

The actual amount is $200 billion. But even if we can hope for progress on a local level, New Yorkers can’t afford to ignore the federal government's role in urban problems.

1. Housing

In his first budget and plans, Trump has proposed sweeping cuts to key social programs. The president-elect said HUD's rental assistance programs “lack requirements to encourage work.”

2. Fair Housing

Carson was introduced as HUD's chief, and appointed a private equity CEO as a top adviser. He has been a vocal critic of Obama's fair housing policy.

3. Spending Caps

The president-elect's budget and plan also includes proposals to rein in federal spending, including lifting housing spending caps. Low-income housing advocates want those caps lifted and HUD's budget increased.

4. Private Housing

Trump has stated that he wants to implement a wave of privatization. Advocates want to ensure privatization does not have negative impacts on homeowners and renters.

5. Public Housing

At a round of funding after years of delay last year and provides states with block grants to build, fix, or preserve housing for low-income families. Republicans and some House Republicans said HUD's rental assistance programs “lack requirements to encourage work.”

6. Housing Assistance

I was working 2 days a week and receiving unemployment income.

7. Affordable Housing

Our government failed us, our housing has failed us. It's incredibly concerning to have a developer like Donald Trump that’s going to be in the White House.

8. Affordable Housing Policies

But even if we can hope for progress on a local level, New Yorkers can’t afford to ignore the federal government's role in urban problems.

9. Affordable Housing

New York, sent a letter to the president-elect urging him to invest in housing as part of his plan to fix the economy.

10. Affordable Housing

The Affordable Housing Act was eliminated in 1987, when the savings and loan scandal was in full swing. LBJ’s great society are over.

SO SAD

But some are overwhelmed and don't know if they even want to live the next day. Poverty for most is not by choice and when your beat down everyday by a system set up by people that don't care.

Rise to my type of success when everybody don't have access to your resource.

It would be short-sighted and it would be a failure for the people that we care about to not look to God. Stop looking to the Government, look to the # Great IAM, He will be whatever you need.
