In a statement Tuesday. "Gambling trillions of tax dollars on just the financial industry and massive corporations, or will we put millions of people out of work, is going to workers not executives and toward preventing the second biggest global crisis: Covid-19, and now risk being intensified."

"This is a pivotal moment for Congressional Democrats, and it's a chance to show our party principles while putting forth COVID-19 relief and recovery." (Image: People's Bailout)

"It's time for our leaders to stop placing shareholders first and put people first," co-founder of the Sunrise Movement, Ed Markey said. "This is a chance to show our party's commitment to fighting for an economy that prioritizes the people and the planet."

"It's time for our leaders to put people and communities first, not the regime in power," Rep. Mark Pocan (D-Wis.) said. "We need a bailout for our people, not for corporations."

"This is a time to be decisive in saving lives, and bold in charting a path to a genuinely healthier and more equitable future through a just transition," said Pramila Jayapal (D-Wash.) and Debbie Dingell (D-Mich.) "The public health crisis has provoked fresh calls for corporations instead of saving the people and communities hurt most by Trump's failure to tackle the climate emergency. The People's Bailout aligns with demands from other new campaigns along with experts and our allies and it is a coalition of movements that is growing every day."

"This is a moment to act," said Jayapal. "The People's Bailout is a coalition of organizations that is single-minded on saving the planet, saving the pandemic, and saving the people of this country."

"The people are already organizing," Rep. Pramila Jayapal (D-Wash.) and Sen. Ed Markey (D-Mass.) said in a statement Tuesday. "The time is now to make the People's Bailout a reality."

"This is not a bailout for the rich, it is a bailout for the people," Rep. Pramila Jayapal (D-Wash.) and Sen. Ed Markey (D-Mass.) said. "The American people need and deserve a People's Bailout: a bailout that prioritizes public health and economic relief for workers over corporations while taking inaction in the face of the climate emergency."